Techuana

Techuana is an international camp and training centre for the carinthian boy Scouts and girl Guides. Techuana, the secluded camp ground in the southern part of Carinthia, Austria offers whatever a boy Scout or girl Guide desires. Surrounded by mountains, forests, moorland and a lake it is the perfect place for sporting and natural activities like wild life observation as well.

The area also presents a natural trail and numerous points of interest and history in walking distance. Techuana is also well suited for activities during the colder time of the year. There are heating facilities in the common room and kitchen.

Campers do have the choice of large and small separated group camps. About 25,000 square metres are available as camp sites.

Permanent accommodation is available in wooden cabins or in the main buildings, where you also have the possibility to rent a fully fitted kitchen for your stay.

Sanitary facilities including hot and cold showers are located in several areas all over the camp ground. For your convenience there is a little shop and "The Saloon" in the main building.

The huge ceremony site and several smaller ones offer excellent opportunities for camp fires and other celebrations.

To make this experience a real "natural" one, there is no electricity or a telephone in Techuana. Please see the website for more information.
